The Diocese of Brisbane

The Diocese of Brisbane is coterminous with Southern Queensland. Its area is 542,000 sq.km, and its population is about half of the entire population of the State which is estimated at four million. The members of the Anglican Church of Australia form about 25% of this number. There are 517 clergy and 303 churches.

On 14 June, 1859, Dr Edward Wyndham Tufnell was consecrated first Bishop of Brisbane, and arrived here in September 1860, to exercise Episcopal control in the newly formed Colony of Queensland. The Bishop arrived to find the work in the Diocese maintained by the utterly inadequate staff of three clergy. To these must be added the six clergy the Bishop brought with him. When, after fourteen years' strenuous pioneer work, the Bishop resigned, he left a staff of 26 clergy and a Diocese equipped and furnished with all the needful machinery for Diocesan administration.

In 1874, when Bishop Tufnell resigned, the Synod of the Diocese failing to elect a successor or to delegate the power of appointment to the Church at home, the appointment of his successor lapsed to the Bishops of Australia and Tasmania, by whom the Right Reverend Mathew Blagden Hale, Bishop of Perth, was nominated. Bishop Hale was translated to Brisbane in 1876. During the episcopate of Bishop Hale, which lasted eight years, the Diocese of North Queensland was formed. In the year 1878 the Rev'd George Henry Stanton, then Vicar of St Giles in the Fields, was consecrated Bishop of the new Diocese, and arrived in Queensland in 1879.

In 1884, when Synod was called upon to elect a successor as bishop in succession to Bishop Hale, the choice was delegated to the Archbishop of Canterbury, which resulted in the consecration of the Rev'd William Thomas Thornhill Webber, on St Barnabas' Day, 1885. The Bishop was enthroned by the Primate in St John's Pro-Cathedral on 17 November 1885. When the Bishop arrived he found 33 clergy working in the Diocese; on his death, in the year 1903, the number had risen to 57. The episcopate of Bishop Webber is well remembered for two great outward achievements – the creation of the Diocese of Rockhampton and the successful launching of the Cathedral project. On SS Philip and James' Day 1889, the Venerable Nathaniel Dawes, Archdeacon of Brisbane, was consecrated Coadjutor-Bishop of the Diocese, with special oversight over the Northern portion, and when four years later the See of Rockhampton was formed, Dr Dawes was elected its first Bishop.

When, in 1903, the choice of Bishop was delegated to the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Rev'd St Clair George Alfred Donaldson was nominated to the vacant See.

Archbishop Donaldson resigned from 15 November 1921. The Right Rev'd Gerald Sharp was elected to fill the vacancy by the Archbishop Election Committee, and was enthroned in St John's Cathedral on 16 November 1921. He remained in charge of the Diocese as Archbishop until the day of his death, 30 August 1933.

In November 1933, the Archbishop Election Committee met in Brisbane and elected the Rev'd John William Charles Wand, Dean of Oriel College, Oxford. Archbishop Wand was consecrated in St Paul's Cathedral, London, on Tuesday, 1 May 1934, and on Wednesday, 5 September, was enthroned in St John's Cathedral, Brisbane. He resigned on 31 July 1943, on his appointment as Bishop of Bath and Wells.

On 3 November 1943, having been elected by the Archbishop Election Committee, the Right Rev'd Reginald Charles Halse, Bishop of Riverina, was enthroned in St John's Cathedral, Brisbane. He remained in charge of the Diocese as Archbishop until the day of his death, 9 August 1962.

On 28 March 1963, having been elected by the Archbishop Election Committee, the Right Rev'd Philip Nigel Warrington Strong, Bishop of New Guinea, was enthroned in St John's Cathedral, Brisbane. He resigned on 30 June 1970.

On 10 July 1970, the Rev'd Canon Frank William Coaldrake, Chairman of the Australian Board of Missions, was elected to be the Archbishop of Brisbane. Unfortunately, he died suddenly on 22 July 1970 before he could be consecrated or enthroned.

On 17 October 1970, having been elected by the Archbishop Election Committee, the Right Rev'd Dr Felix Raymond Arnott, Bishop Coadjutor of Melbourne, was enthroned in St John's Cathedral, Brisbane. He resigned on 31 July 1980.

On 15th November 1980, having been elected by the Archbishop Election Committee, the Right Rev'd John Basil Rowland Grindrod, Bishop of Rockhampton, was enthroned in St John's Cathedral, Brisbane.

His resignation took effect from 4 December 1989.

On 22 March 1990, having been elected by the Archbishop Election Committee, the Right Reverend Peter John Hollingworth, Bishop of the Inner City of Melbourne, was enthroned in St John's Cathedral, Brisbane. His resignation became effective from 25 June 2001.

On 2 February 2002, having been elected by the Archbishop Election Committee, the Right Rev'd Dr Phillip John Aspinall, Assistant Bishop of Adelaide, was installed in St John's Cathedral, Brisbane.

St John's Cathedral, Brisbane

The Cathedral Church of St John the Evangelist is one of the great works of architecture stemming from the Victorian neo-gothic revival of the 19th Century.

The design, by eminent English architect John Loughborough Pearson, is a mixture of French and Early English neo-Gothic style, with many features reminiscent of Norman cathedrals in Caen and Coutances. Pearson had already designed a new cathedral for Truro in Cornwall, where he concentrated principally on English Gothic style, but for this building he planned a polygonal apse at the east end, and a double-aisled nave, providing a processional ambulatory around the central worship space.

The sexpartite ribs of the vault, rising from the major and minor piers of the nave and chancel give a unified sense of space and grace, with elegance of form and proportion. It is understood that this is the most extensive stone vault in the southern hemisphere.

The pillars which form such a notable feature of the cathedral are marvellously varied in form and scale – from the solid Romanesque piers of the southern chapels and the graceful columns of the nave and chancel, to the massive piers of the crossing, and the elegant columns in the Lady Chapel.

The outer walls of the cathedral are of pink porphyry from the O'Connell Town quarry in Windsor, four kilometres from Brisbane. The interior stone in varying shades of creamy brown is sandstone from Helidon, near Toowoomba. The external window dressings of the first stage were of stone from the Pymont quarries in Sydney, New South Wales, while those of the later stages are also from the Helidon quarries in Queensland.

The Lady Chapel and the Southern Chapels form delightful intimate spaces for smaller services and private prayer, and their different character is emphasised by the differing treatments – the Lady Chapel (originally intended as a Children's Chapel) is designed with a calculated lightness and grace which makes it at once a place to which children can relate without being over-awed. The children of the Diocese contributed towards the cost of this chapel, placing in the offertory at the Consecration Ceremony, gifts in specially-made silken purses. The Southern Chapels, with the solid Romanesque piers remind one of many a parish church with a side aisle (indeed the reference to the previous St John's in George Street, may be deliberate).

The High Altar is somewhat Byzantine in style with contrasting coloured marbles, and inlaid glass mosaics. The central panel of the front is made of quartz and agate. The rounded pillars are green Cornish marble, and the Altar is inlaid with alabaster, and green quartz in the side panels. The mensa (table top) is made of three slabs of grey-green marble from Iona (the traditional birthplace of British Christianity). The Altar is a memorial to Bishop Webber, whose inspiration led to the building of the cathedral. His body rests beneath the Altar, having been translated from the Toowong cemetery in 1910.

Pearson's original design included an impressive baldachino (canopy) supported by four columns above the High Altar (similar to that he had designed for Peterborough Cathedral). The floor has been specially strengthened to carry the additional weight.

The Pulpit, carved from Cornish soapstone, was imported from England and features a carved panel depicting Christ teaching the people.

The Font, of grey black marble, rests on columns of Frosterley marble in which can be seen interesting fossils.

The carved Choir Stalls in the chancel were designed by Frank Pearson (John Pearson's son), and the initial sections were carved in Burmese teak, by Luscombes of Exeter. The carving of the remainder of the stalls was continued by Colin Blumson, one of Australia's first Churchill fellows, and completed in 1992.

The canopies on the north side of the choir contain representations of British saints, Alban, Patrick, Ninian and David, together with patron saints associated with diocesan schools. On the south side, are represented King George V and Queen Mary, together with founding Bishops of Australia and the province of Queensland.

The pipe organ, built by Messrs Norman and Beard in 1910, was rebuilt and enlarged in 1969-72 by Messrs Hill, Norman and Beard. The carved organ case of the north transept, designed by Frank Pearson, was donated by Herbert Jones in commemoration of the centenary of the City of Brisbane 1824-1924. At the time of the rebuild in 1972, carved wooden screens were provided for the Swell organ facing into the Chancel — these latter being designed by Arnold Conrad and executed by Colin Blumson, featuring a pair of ringtail possums in the middle of the screen.

The stained glass ranges from imported English glass of the early 20th Century (such as the great Wheel Window of the north transept, designed by Frank Pearson and executed by Burlisson and Grylls), through Australian designs by William Bustard to the more recent modern glass of the clerestory and nave by David Saunders and Glenn Mack, stained glass artists with a deep sense of spiritual vocation.

The completed cathedral is 79.2m long. The width of the nave is 10.6m, the outer aisles 9.6m, and the transepts 8m. The height of the ceiling vault is 18.2m.

Construction History

The first Church of St John 1843-1854 stood on the corner of what is now Queen Street and North Quay. St John's church was then moved to a new site between William, George and Elizabeth Streets and the old building was used for a while as a school and also as the Brisbane Volunteer Fire Station. This Church was built in 1850-54 to a design by E.T. Blacket.

There were three stages to the building of the second St John, the first beginning with the laying of the foundation stone when a portion of the William Street nave was built; the second, when this was extended by the length of two bays, and the third when a duplicate nave with chancel were added. The Church was dedicated to St John the Evangelist by Bishop Tyrrell on 29 October 1854. St John's remained the parish church of Brisbane until it became the pro-cathedral of the Diocese of Brisbane. The enthronement of Bishop Tufnell on 4 September 1860 gave a new status to the little St John's Church as pro-cathedral for the Diocese of Brisbane.

In 1876, a peal of eight bells was installed in a wooden tower at the original site of St John's Church in William Street. However they were housed in a timber belfry which only allowed them to be chimed not rung. This remained the case when the bells were transferred to the present cathedral site in 1906 and housed in a temporary timber bell tower.

In 1879-1880 the school was built. The last service in the second St John's was held on 7 August 1904. In that same year St Luke's Church in Charlotte Street was opened and dedicated to serve as the pro-cathedral until the new Cathedral was built.

The new cathedral was designed John Loughborough Pearson for his friend William Webber who had been appointed third Bishop of Brisbane in 1885. Bishop Webber promoted the idea of replacing the old church with a cathedral and he and John Pearson discussed plans for the cathedral in 1886. In September of that year, at his inaugural address to the Diocese, the Bishop reported that the Diocesan Council had agreed to invite Pearson to prepare the design. He commented: "Thus our citizens will see that we aim at giving to Brisbane nothing less than the best which highest modern art can produce."

Pearson's plans were approved in April 1889, although there were no resources in hand to attempt the commencement of such a grand project in the fledgling colony. The pro-cathedral site in William Street was clearly inadequate, and in 1899 an alternative site between Adelaide and Ann Streets at the northern entrance to the city was purchased, and a site plan was produced in 1900.

Construction work on St John's Cathedral commenced with the laying of the Foundation Stone on 22 May 1901 by the Duke of Cornwall and York (later King George V), on his way home from the opening of the first Federal Australian Parliament in Melbourne. It is located on the north side of the sanctuary, beside the altar rail, and can be seen from the ambulatory.

In 1904, the old St John's in Queen's Park was demolished and much of the material was used in the construction of the St John's Day School (now known as Webber House).

The building of the Cathedral commenced on 22 April 1906. The first stage of the cathedral was built between 1906 and 1910 and consecrated on the Feasts of Saints Simon and Jude (28 October) 1910; it comprised the polygonal end (the east end), sanctuary and chancel, the side chapels, transepts and first bay of the nave. The organ, the pulpit and the rose window were in position in time for the Consecration of the Cathedral.

By the time the building commenced in 1906, both the architect John Pearson and the motivating Bishop Webber had died and the design development had passed to Pearson's architect son Frank Loughborough Pearson. He was never able to visit the site. The contractor for the first stage of building was Peter Rodger of Ballarat, Victoria. Care has been taken to remain faithful to Pearson's concept and designs. The original plan envisaged a cathedral which would cost some £100,000 (and at that time the colony numbered some 100,000 inhabitants). It was a very grandiose scheme for its time. The first stage of the building (about one-third of its bulk) was commenced in 1906 and completed in 1910, at a cost of some £37,000.

The clergy stalls were installed in June 1913. The sounding board over the pulpit was not installed until September 1916.

In 1944, it was resolved to make the completion of St John's Cathedral the Diocesan War Memorial. On 24 October 1946 an appeal was launched. On 15 July 1947 Field Marshall Viscount Montgomery of Alamein laid the corner stone (known as the Stone of Remembrance) of the extensions.

On Sunday 21 August 1955, the first sod was turned by His Excellency the Governor-General of Australia (Sir William Slim).

A Start of Building Service was celebrated on 21 November 1965 and work resumed. On 27 May 1968 HRH Prince Philip unveiled a stone in the new portion commemorating the completion of the masonry. The two bay extensions (1964-68) were completed and consecrated on Friday 22 November 1968. On the advice of structural engineers, added strength was given to the structure by incorporating within the piers a core of steel.

In 1988, two bells were added to the peal as a Bicentennial gift from the Friends of the Cathedral and the Cathedral Gift Shop, and the 10 bells were transferred to a steel frame intended to be the skeleton of the north west tower. Here they could be rung full circle, but only with a fair degree of difficulty because of excessive movement in the tower. In 2004 they were rehung in their final resting place above the nave crossing as Pearson intended, where they can be rung in full circle without compromise.

The final stage of construction to complete the cathedral commenced in 1989. Peter Dare of Exeter was appointed the master mason in the same year. After a time he also took over the role of construction manager, and has overseen the completion of the nave and the west end of the Cathedral.

Work took place on the south-west porch between June 1989 and 1990, and continued with construction of the fourth bay of the nave and the western front. The western front was opened in December 2006. Work then commenced on the construction of the western towers.

In 2000 the first stained glass window was installed in the West end; this commemorated Australian-United States of America comradeship during World War II; it was executed by Glenn Mack of Victoria.

In early 2000 a public competition was held for the design of the major window in the west front, known as the Millennium window. The design submitted by Scott Maxwell on the theme of "creation" was accepted by the Cathedral Chapter and executed by Warwick Blair of Brisbane.

In mid 2000 work on the Cathedral, which had been previously supervised by Conrad & Gargett Pty Ltd, was transferred to architect Michael Kennedy because of his expertise in conservation architecture. The Cathedral Chapter at the same time established its own CAD drawing office and appointed an architectural draftsman to facilitate issues of drawing and cutting profiles for the computed directed wire saw used to produce stone for the building. John Phillips R.I.B.A. of London acted as a consultant architect to the project until his death in 2006.

In late 2006, Peter Dare returned to England. He remained a consultant to the project, but the role of construction manager has passed to Terry McCallum. Cliff Lawrence was the foreman mason in charge of stone work.

The western spires were raised on the 1 March 2008 and the central spire on the 11 November 2008, complete with the installation of the last two bells. Both days received wide, national media coverage and were an historic achievement. This marked the end of the construction of the cathedral. The cost of the final stage of cathedral construction was $39.2m.

The West Windows were installed in March 2009 (a public competition for the design was held and was won by Mr Glenn Mack). The exciting design centers on the theme of the 'I am' saying from St John's gospel, and includes symbolism which captures the desire to enter into dialogue with other faiths and the world of science. The Catholic Archdiocese (who celebrated 150 years of the Catholic Archdiocese in Brisbane in 2009) donated a pair of windows as their gift to us on the sesquicentenary of the Anglican Diocese of Brisbane. We also have a window commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Anglican Diocese of Brisbane as well as the State of Queensland.

The Cathedral was consecrated by the Most Reverend Dr Phillip Aspinall on 29 October 2009, in an extremely moving and powerful liturgy. Music was provided by the cathedral Choir, the Camerata of St John's and the Brisbane Chamber Choir. The service was attended by over 50 bishops, former Archbishops, Deans of the Cathedral, ecumenical friends and political figures. The preacher was the Very Rev'd David Richardson (Archbishop of Canterbury's Representative to the Holy See and Director of the Anglican Centre in Rome). The Service incorporated a welcome by the traditional owners, a didgeridoo player and dancing the Gospel by representatives of the Torres Strait Islander group. A DVD of the Service was made and distributed at the end of the year.

It was fitting that we were able to consecrate the cathedral in the sesquicentenary year of both the State of Queensland and the Anglican Diocese of Brisbane.

The consecration dinner took place the following evening 30 October and was another successful event with a wonderful musical content.

Plans to develop the northern precinct in sympathy with Pearson's vision continued during 2009. Permission was sought from the Brisbane City Council to amend our successful development application to allow for staging the project, i.e. stage one is to refurbish St Martin's, Webber and Church Houses for office accommodation and build the three-story annexe behind Webber House and stage two is constructing the car park. We await the outcome of discussions.

Cathedral Coin Collection

In 2010, a donor, who wishes to remain anonymous, donated an extensive collection of ancient coins to St John's Cathedral. Some coins in the collection date back to the time of Christ. Jack Barnes made a secure showcase for the coins that are on public display near the southern chapels. The core collection is supplemented by the temporary addition of coins and other items of interest that refer to a specific event.

Northern Precinct Development

Plans for the construction of an extension to Webber House firmed as 2011 progressed. Groundbreaking ceremonies were conducted by the Dean for the cathedral congregations on 24 July, and by the Archbishop for staff on 7 September. Hutchinson's Builders commenced work on Monday 28 November. Work was completed in 2012, allowing for many of the diocesan services to be co-located in the Cathedral grounds and allowing for the centralizing of functions for the diocese and the cathedral.

After consideration, chapter named the site St John's Cathedral Precinct. Chapter wished to create a welcoming environment not only for staff, but also for all visitors to the cathedral and precinct. Both Webber House and the annexe are known as Webber House.

A blessing of Webber House and the commissioning of the people of St John's Cathedral Precinct was conducted by the Archbishop on 4 October 2012.

Refurbishment of St Martin's House commenced in early November 2012, and was completed during 2013 by Hutchinson's Builders. During the work extensive termite damage was identified and treated. There will be ongoing work in order to avoid future infestations. The public toilet block was also refurbished.

Stage two, the development of the cloisters and the construction of a car park remains on the table and will only proceed at a time when sufficient funds are available. Parking on site is increasingly problematic and visitors are encouraged to take public transport.

CCTV

Before the G20 was held in November 2014, the cathedral team carried out a security audit of the cathedral and precinct. This led to the upgrading of our security cameras. These are also used liturgically.

As a result of the upgrade we now have the capacity to live-stream liturgies and other cathedral events. The bells and bell ringers can also now be observed from screens placed in the nave.

BHP Billiton Building, 380 Queen St – Grocon Constructions

Grocon, the builders, and Nexus, the owners, opened this building mid-2015. Aspects of the building are in sympathy with the cathedral such as the building being designed to reflect the porphyry and sandstone of the cathedral.

Hobbs Park is located in the building and was named by the Right Honourable Graham Quirk, Lord Mayor of Brisbane on 12 March 2015. There are plans to construct a pedestrian bridge connecting Hobbs Park to the east end of the cathedral, thus establishing a connection between the Brisbane River and historic Adelaide House (The Deanery). A pedestrian bridge will be a great benefit attracting people to St John's Precinct. The cathedral and 380 Queen Street management have a very good ongoing working relationship.

Storm 27 November 2014 – Precinct Damage

On 27 November 2014, a ferocious storm cell hit Brisbane causing extensive damage to St John's Precinct.

All buildings on the site sustained substantial damage to roofs and windows. The cathedral suffered large amounts of water ingress which affected the organ and other areas. Fortunately the damage was covered by insurance. The repair works cost a total of $6m and continue into 2018. Work undertaken included: replacement of roof tiles on the cathedral, St Martin's House, Webber House and Church House, replacement of the copper sheeting on the western towers and the central tower, replacement of the cathedral lighting control system and external lighting. Replacement of roofing on the Deanery and Webber House annexe, installation of new stainless steel box guttering and 13 new dormer vents around the ambulatory roof of the cathedral. The chapels sustained water damage during the storm. As a result the chapels floor underwent restoration work in 2015 and 2016, the carpets were removed and the floors polished. This work dramatically improved the acoustics in these chapels. Extensive repair work was carried out on the organ and was completed in 2018.

The Lady Chapel and southern chapels also sustained water damage following the storm on 27 November 2014. As a result the chapels underwent floor restoration work in 2015 and 2016, the carpets were removed and the floors polished. This work dramatically improved the acoustics in these chapels.

Cathedral Stained Glass Windows

Post-storm, the upper ambulatory windows on the east end of the cathedral have been repaired and cleaned, protective glass was installed to prevent future damage. The protective glass was not covered by storm damage insurance.

The seven lower ambulatory windows (Bustard Windows) were taken out, restored and replaced. Again, protective glass was installed. This work was not covered by storm damage insurance but was undertaken to utilise the scaffolding that was erected for storm damage repair work.

The repair work on the remainder of the stained glass window on the eastern side of the cathedral was completed in 2017.

Church House Refurbishment

In August 2016, refurbishment work on Church House commenced and was completed in December 2016. NPS Commercial was the contractor. Church House is now back to its original state. The building has been totally rewired, painted, recarpeted, reglazed and new air conditioning installed. The main entrance is now at the southern face of the building and allows for disabled access.

During 2017, the diocesan archives moved into the ground floor of Church House and the Anglican Schools Office moved into the upper floor.

Tapestry Cushions from the Lady Chapel

The collection of 400 cushions was cleaned and restored in 2015, and catalogued in 2016. The cushions are currently being displayed in the glass cabinet in the northern transept. A new lighting system was installed in the display cabinet to highlight the cushions. The display changes monthly.

Refurbishment of Blessed Sacrament Chapel

In 2015, Jack Barnes was commissioned to craft a new tabernacle for the Blessed Sacrament Chapel and to restore the altar. The tabernacle is now in place and enhances this space. In 2017, Jack Barnes developed a proposal to further enhance the altar. A faculty for the work has been granted and Jack Barnes commenced work in 2018. The altar piece is due for completion by Christmas 2018.

West End Statues

The first three statues were installed in their niches on the west end of the cathedral on 28 January 2015. The Christ: Holy Wisdom; John the Baptist; and Mary Magdalene were the first of the series of 13 statues to be lifted into place. Statues in the west end are part of Pearson's plan for the cathedral. The statues are being carved by Dr Rhyl Hinwood AM, as funds are available and will be lifted in sets of three. Funds to complete all the statues were received in 2018.

Mary, Mother of Jesus and Joseph of Nazareth; Lazarus of Bethany, Mary of Bethany and Martha of Bethany; and James and John the Evangelist were dedicated on 6 May 2016.

On 29 November 2017, Matthias & Judas Iscariot; Peter & Paul; Luke & Matthew and Thomas & Mark were blessed by the Archbishop. The lifting of the statues into their niches was delayed until 15 December due to wet weather.

James the Just & Bartholomew and Jude & Simon have been carved and in late 2018, Dr Rhyl Hinwood AM was carving the last statue, Phillip & Andrew. These will be raised into place in early 2019. This will complete the project.

Oratory Floor

The designs for the oratory (the space left vacant when the font was moved to the west end) floor and for the associated furniture have now been finalised. The project will be funded through a bequest from Dianna and Elizabeth Luker. Jack Barnes was commissioned to construct the mosaic floor in 2018, which he will commence when the Blessed Sacrament Chapel work is finished. This project is due for completion in readiness for the 10th anniversary of the consecration of the cathedral in October 2019.

Cathedral Sound System

As reported in previous years, the cathedral's 10 year old sound system was problematic and in need of a complete overhaul. After much consideration Chapter commissioned Brisbane Sound to install a Dante mixing console and processor, 38 speaker system that is zoned so that sound can be in the whole cathedral or directed to particular areas thus giving flexibility for different worship, liturgies, groups and concerts.

The project was challenging as St John's Cathedral had a sound delay of six seconds, the usual sound delay is 1-1.5 seconds. Another challenge was to install aesthetically pleasing speakers and cabling and this was achieved.

The first large service when the sound system was used was the Ordination of Priests and Deacons on 2 December 2017, with approximately 1,150 people in attendance. The sound was excellent.

Queens & Regimental Colours & Guidons Display Project

Discussions were initiated last 2016 with Steve Taubert, author of Preserving our Proud Heritage, to preserve and display the damaged guidons and regimental colours which at present are stored in St Martin's House. Steve has offered to be the champion for the project and will coordinate grant applications etc. This project is ongoing.

Brisbane City Council's City Centre Neighbourhood Plan

The Brisbane City Council revised City Centre Neighbourhood Plan outcomes were good for St John's Cathedral as the Brisbane City Council was sympathetic to maintaining the sightlines to the cathedral including views from Cathedral Square. Chapter was pleased with this outcome.

HRH The Duke of York, KG – Visit to the Cathedral 2017

On 24 September 2017, HRH, The Duke of York, KG (Prince Andrew) and the Governor of Queensland, His Excellency the Hon Paul de Jersey AC attended the 9.30am Service and each did a reading.

New Vestments

Chapter purchased new blue vestments which were used during Advent 2017, and were well received. New white vestments were also ordered. The Dorcus Guild will work on embroidering designs on the vestments.

The Ministry of Laying on of Hands with Prayer & Anointing

Conversations were held with the cathedral community and this ministry was offered on the first Sunday of each month after the 9.30am Service from 4 February 2018.

Supplicants were invited to move to the Lady Chapel after receiving communion. There was significant demand for the ministry. The feedback has been very positive. The use of the High Altar for the 9.30am Service was reintroduced, also for the first Sunday of each month.

St John's Cathedral Girls' Choir

The Girls' Choir was introduced mid-2018 and is going very well.

Cathedral Doors

The north west and north east doors of the cathedral were cleaned and restored in 2018. The hinges and steel work has been cleaned, recoated and realigned.

Death of Mr Ken Addison

Chapter marked with sadness the death of Mr Ken Addison who was very active in the diocese over many years. Ken also had a real love of the cathedral and a wealth of knowledge, as demonstrated in his publication "Historical and Archives Notes" on the cathedral which has been a much needed and often referred to resource at the cathedral ever since.

Ken carefully managed the diocesan finances as treasurer and the cathedral finances as a member of the building sub-committee of chapter which was set up to oversee the final stages of construction of the cathedral, his knowledge and expertise were put to good use in this role. Ken's son, Bruce, was a chorister at the cathedral.

Ken was awarded an OAM in the Queen's Birthday Honours 2018, just before his death. Ken was a good and faithful servant, a quiet achiever.

Mr Michael Dodson

In late 2017, Michael retired from the cathedral after 42 years as Verger/Groundsman. In late 2018, Michael was diagnosed with oesophagus cancer which spread to other organs. His prognosis is not good and he is expected to live until the end of the year.

Queensland Government Anzac Centenary Grant

During 2018, Chapter successfully applied for a Queensland Government Anzac Centenary Grant our application has been successful. Chapter published a booklet, St John's Cathedral and the Anzac Legend which was launched on 19 December 2018. The booklet is on the military of memorabilia in the Cathedral including the ANZAC flag which hangs in the Southern Chapels. It has been established that the flag in our possession was the last flag Allied to fly at ANZAC Cove.

Choir Reunion

This was a well-attended event with former choristers gathering together to rehearse before dinner, then Evensong followed by a party. One man was a chorister in 1949.

Adelaide House (The Deanery) Balcony

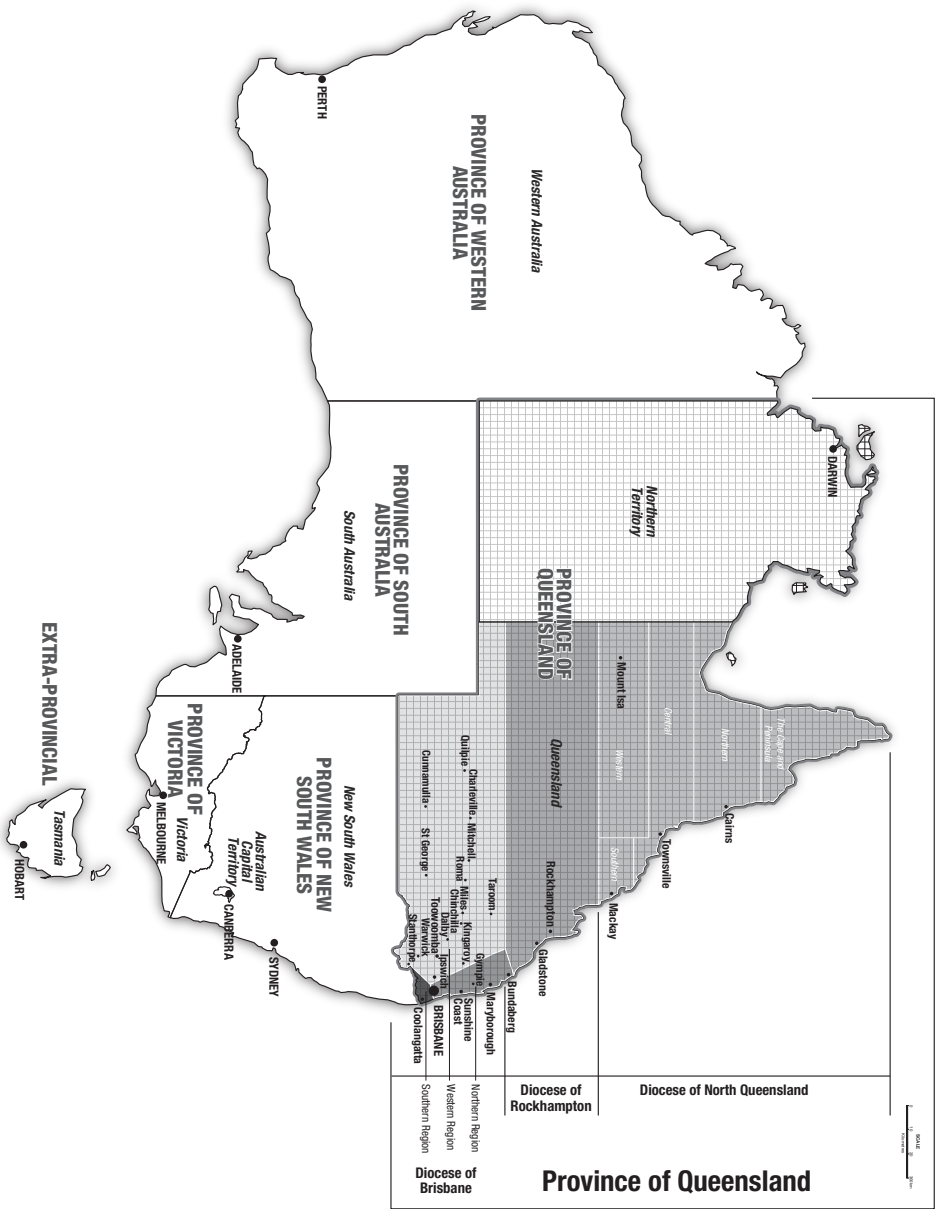

In 2018, Chapter was successful in obtaining a grant of $50,000 from the Community Sustainability Action Grants, Heritage Conservation to restore the balcony of the Deanery to its original state. The total cost of the work is $110,000 and further application has been made to the National Trust for an appeal to fund the shortfall. The initial work is on hold until we receive the funding shortfall. Jack Barnes is undertaking the work and Ivan McDonald is the Heritage Architect overseeing the project. Adelaide House is a significant building in the history of Queensland as the balcony was where the declaration of Queensland as a separate State from New South Wales was declared in December 1859.

National Trust Appeal – Adelaide House

In November 2018, Chapter submitted a National Trust Heritage Appeal Application for restoration work to Adelaide House. It is hoped that Chapter will be successful in obtaining funding to refurbish the entire Deanery.

National Trust Appeal – Cathedral Completion Program and Cathedral Restoration & Repair

In November 2018, Chapter submitted a National Trust Heritage Appeal Application to combine completion and maintenance of the cathedral. Chapter hopes this Application is successful and the Appeal will be called, Cathedral Completion Program and Cathedral Restoration & Repair.

Regional Bishops, Archdeacons & Area Deans

Gifts are given ... to equip the saints, for the work of ministry, for building up the Body of Christ.

Ephesians 4.12

The role descriptions below outline some of the expectations of Area Deans, Archdeacons and Regional Bishops. These expectations are not exhaustive, and each person is able to shape further the role they hold.

Area Deans, Archdeacons and Regional Bishops work with the Archbishop in encouraging, serving and building up the People of God. They extend pastoral care to the clergy of the Diocese and work with all to realise our vision of 'Going for Growth in Christ'.

The Role of Area Deans

Area Deans draw the clergy and laity in the Deanery together for mutual consultation, support and action to encourage effective ministry in the Church and in the wider community.

In particular, Area Deans:

- convene meetings of clergy in the Area Deanery for peer support, mutual encouragement and further education. Area Deaneries should meet at least four times a year.
- offer counsel and pastoral support to all clergy in the Area Deanery and foster fellowship for them and their families, taking care to include retired clergy, chaplains, locums, clergy widows, etc.
- oversee arrangements for commissioning services of new parish priests and chaplains in collaboration with parish lay leaders and submit the draft order of service for the Regional Bishop's approval in good time.

Area Deans are usually priests of busy parishes, so expectations of the time they have available need to be realistic.

The Role of Archdeacons

Archdeacons work with their Regional Bishop to support the Area Deans, clergy, parishes and other ministry agencies to enable the diocesan vision of 'Going for Growth in Christ' to be fulfilled.

Archdeaconries are usually defined geographically, although from time to time the Archbishop might create an Archdeacon with a particular ministry portfolio.

In particular, Archdeacons:

- are part of the ordained leadership team in the diocese and within the region. The Archdeacon is a channel of communication between diocesan officials, the Regional Bishop, Area Deans and clergy.
- are responsible for the Parish Review, at least every five years as prescribed by the relevant regulation, or when a parish becomes vacant.
- inspect church property, including rectories (by negotiation with the parish priest) every five years, and consult with church wardens about required repairs and refurbishments.
- consult with parishes about plans for new buildings or alterations to existing buildings, and indicate agreement or otherwise report on the prescribed form seeking building approval.
- receive from clergy, on the prescribed form, notification regarding leave or other absences and arrangements for the continuance of pastoral and liturgical ministries; and convey such arrangements to their Regional Bishop.
- welcome locum clergy during a parish interregnum and keep in touch with them during the length of their locum.
- consult with the Regional Bishop in finding pathways for the resolution of any parish conflict.
- work with the Regional Bishop and others in the development of strategies for church growth in the Archdeaconry, and in the implementation of good management procedures in parishes and other ministry agencies, such as record keeping, accounts, policies, etc.
- participate in the Archbishop's regular meeting with the Bishops, Archdeacons and Dean of the Cathedral.

Archdeacons are also usually priests of busy parishes, so (as with Area Deans) expectations of the time they have available need to be realistic. Recognising the additional workload and responsibilities of Archdeacons, an annual allowance equal to 10% of the Minimum Rate of Stipend (MRS) will be paid by the diocese to the Archdeacon at the end of the year, (or for those who have not served a full year in the role a pro rata amount).

Provision is also made for a contribution to an Archdeacon's parish for expenses incurred by the parish because of the Archdeacon's ministry. Payments will be made annually to the parish as follows:

Archdeaconry	Percentage of MRS
West	8%
Cunningham, The Downs, Sunshine Coast, Burnett	6%
Brisbane, Lilley, Oxley, Moreton, Gold Coast	4%

The Role of Regional Bishops

The Regional Bishops form, with the Archbishop, an episcopal team serving the Diocese. Assistant Bishops undertake functions or roles requested or authorised by the Archbishop. This might include serving on one or more commissions from time to time.

Except for the responsibilities of decision and appointment that are specifically the Archbishop's, they carry out the role of a Bishop to the clergy and people in the episcopal region they serve. This is often a pastoral responsibility and will involve them closely in consultation with the clergy and people of the parishes. As "shepherds of the shepherds" they seek to encourage the development of ministry and the witness of clergy and laity in their region. They teach and defend the faith, encourage all Christians and foster hope for the future as we 'Go for Growth in Christ'.

The Bishops realise it is fundamental that they pray and plan together. For this purpose they meet together with the Archbishop each week.

Other roles and responsibilities of the Regional Bishops include:

- visiting parishes and other mission agencies regularly and spending time with clergy and people, for it is in the parishes and other mission agencies that the fundamental and continuing life and witness of the Church takes place.
- chairing, at the Archbishop's request, meetings of the Presentation Board.
- regular consultation with the Region's Archdeacons and Area Deans, especially in relation to new appointments, to strategies that might grow the church in faith, service, generosity and numbers, and to pastoral care especially of the clergy.

- keeping in touch with clergy who have recently accepted an appointment to a parish within the region and particularly with clergy in their first charge.
- responsibility for ecumenical relationships at the regional level, and the exploration, where appropriate, of possible co-operative ventures.
- responsibility for the making of locum tenens arrangements in the case of vacancies.
- being available to clergy and laity who seek an appointment and attentive to their needs and issues.

Therefore ... let us run with perseverance the race that is before us, looking to Jesus the pioneer and perfecter of our faith.

Synod Sermon

by Archbishop Phillip J Aspinall

Preached at the Eucharist of the 2018 Synod
Friday 5 October 2018

Job 38:1, 12-21; 40:3-5

Ps 139:6-11

Luke 10:13-16

Once again this evening we thank God for the lectionary.

'Woe to you Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida!'

The Revised Common Lectionary sets the first part of Luke 10 for the 14th Ordinary Sunday in Year C: but it omits verses 13-16, precisely the text of tonight's gospel reading. So if you go to church only on Sundays you have probably never heard this passage read in public worship. And even if you have been to the eucharist on Friday in the 19th week after Pentecost, I doubt that many of you have heard a sermon on this text. But tonight's the night. What you're sensing is the thrill of rising anticipation.

'Woe to you Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida!'

In this central part of the gospel Luke is well and truly in mission mode.

The previous chapter, 9, begins with Jesus sending out the 12. He gives them authority over evil; and power to cure diseases. He tells them to proclaim the kingdom of God and to heal.

The number is significant, of course. The Ancient people of God, Israel, consisted of 12 tribes. Jesus calling and sending the 12 is a dramatic gesture signifying the renewal of the 12 tribes, the re-creation of the Ancient people of God, the transformation of Israel, as the kingdom of God breaks in.

The current chapter, 10, similarly begins with Jesus sending. This time he sends 70 (or 72 in some manuscripts). This sending of the 70 is the gospel reading for St Luke's Day coming up in a fortnight. Again the number is significant.

I once read Genesis 10 to an unsuspecting congregation. It's an absolutely scintillating genealogy of the descendants of Noah through his sons, Shem, Ham and Japheth. And I had the congregation count the number of descendants named for each son. It took a few tries, and most of a Sunday morning, because the text isn't entirely clear and wanders off on various excursions. But finally we arrived at totals: Japheth 14; Ham 30; and Shem 26. A grand total of ... 70. And the account concludes: 'These are the families of Noah's sons, ... and from these the nations spread abroad on the earth after the flood (Genesis 10.32).

So in Luke 10, when Jesus sends the 70 'on ahead of him ... to every town and place where he himself intended to go', it's a way of referring to the whole inhabited earth, to all people, everywhere.

This sending anticipates the programme Luke will unveil in his second volume, the Acts of the Apostles, where the announcement of the kingdom will move outwards from Jerusalem, beyond the people of Israel, into all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth' (Acts 1.8).

Holding chapters 9 and 10 together, the two sendings, Luke tells us that the Messiah of Israel is also the saviour of the world.

But what exactly are these 70 sent to do? Well, they are to travel light and to accept hospitality; to bring peace, a rich, deep notion that includes wholeness, reconciliation, healing, wellbeing for individuals and communities. They are to cure the sick; and they are to announce that 'the kingdom of God has come near to you.'

Jesus warns them that they will be vulnerable, like lambs among wolves, and that they will experience rejection and hostility as well as welcome.

And rejection of the kingdom has significant consequences.

'Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! ... And you, Capernaum'

These are all towns around the north of the Sea of Galilee where Jesus performed miracles. But even seeing and experiencing the presence and action of God first hand didn't necessarily lead to changed hearts and minds; encountering God doesn't always give birth to faith.

And so these towns of Israel are compared with the foreigners in Tyre and Sidon. The whole of Israel knew and understood that the residents of Tyre and Sidon had to repent, had to change. What they failed to see was that similar transformation was expected of them too.

So welcomed or rejected, the 70 are to announce and to embody the kingdom of God in all the towns and villages they will visit, just as Jesus did. The 70 are sent 'not to be people pleasers but God bearers' agents of individual and social transformation (Dechamplain, 2014, 287).

Whoever listens to them, listens to Jesus; whoever rejects them, rejects Jesus; and whoever rejects Jesus, rejects the one who sent him: God and opts out of the new creation.

Here then is a New Testament snapshot of mission: sent to embody and to announce the kingdom of God.

We don't always think of mission like that.

The well-known English theologian Martyn Percy was once asked what he would do to get more bums on pews. He said 'I'm more interested in getting bums off pews. Seriously, we are not trying to grow the membership of a club; we are trying to send out people to further the work of the Kingdom of God' (Graham, 2017).

In similar vein, Carol Merritt (2014, 286), an American scholar wrote:

Too often Christians are shut up in ... [churches], concerned about leaky roofs and ... counting the attendance, and wringing their hands because people do not seem to be worshipping God as they did in the past. Congregations spend so much time caring for their own and feeling anxious about their demise that they sometimes forget that they, like the 70, have been sent out with the Gospel of God's love and justice and mercy. The good news has been given to them for the world. ... get out of the pews and join in the mission of God to the world...

Jesus did precisely that. He was forever getting into trouble for eating and drinking with sinners. Back in Luke chapter 5 even the despised and ostracised tax collector, Matthew, Jesus seems to see as a beloved child of God, in need of healing, restoration, transformation, re-creation. So Jesus says to him 'Come'. Hated by all, no one had said that to Matthew for a very long time. 'Come.'

Come with me. Enter into relationship with me. Join me in my relationships with others. Help me create a community that embodies and fosters God's rule on earth (McManus, 2013, 226).

It must have blown Matthew's mind to be seen like that and spoken to like that. To have been on the receiving end of nothing but hate, derision, repulsion, condemnation – and then to feel that divine love had come to rest on him – on him of all people – must have been a profound shock. The embodiment of divine love says to him 'Come'.

And the text records simply that 'He got up and followed.' But instantly he's at dinner with Jesus and his disciples 'breaking bread, sharing in conversation, trusting one another, coming alive, dissolving [old] boundaries of every kind – and entering into genuine communion' (McManus, 2013, 228).

Matthew's transformation, and the transformation of the rag-tag community Jesus mixed with, stems from the mysterious power of genuine communion. It's nothing less than the dawning of the actual reign of God through Jesus' word and action.

Everyone around the table is 'embraced by the unconditional, transforming love of God in Jesus' (ibid). All are invited to 'come' and 'follow'. All are empowered by being 'seen' as children of God.

'Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners? [The Pharisees want to know.] Because he is the enfleshed Word of God who is known in mercy, not sacrifice, in communion, not separation, in healing acceptance, not judgement. Because he is the embodiment of the new creation ...' (McManus, 2013, 228).

Jesus sent the 70 to be the means of healing, wholeness and transformation in a world broken and in the grip of evil, but loved by God. We are now summoned and sent to embody and announce God's reign so that others might know they too are loved by God and be transformed.

God, grant us grace and courage so to live.

President's Address

By The Most Reverend Dr Phillip J Aspinall
Archbishop of Brisbane

To the second session of the 79th Synod of the Diocese of Brisbane
Saturday 6 October 2018

Welcome to this Second Session of the 79th Synod of the Diocese of Brisbane.

Royal Commission

Since we last met the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse has delivered its final report. Announced in late 2012, the Commission began its work in early 2013 and ran for five years until December 2017.

The Royal Commission exposed significant failures of institutions to protect children in their care, bringing great shame on those institutions, including the churches. The pain of facing those failures and that shame is great; so great that the temptation is great to regard them as a tragic chapter that's now behind us, and to move on to other important matters. We must resist that temptation. It would be a further betrayal of the survivors who, at great cost to themselves, courageously came forward and told their stories. On the basis of that courage and the comprehensive work of the Royal Commission, Australia has crossed a threshold into a future in which our children will be much safer, and institutions will be much more accountable for protecting them. But that future will eventuate only if we, now, have the courage to face squarely the truth the Royal Commission uncovered and implement its comprehensive recommendations. That will involve considerable further work and, I believe, is a sacred responsibility of our church and this Synod.

The Royal Commission worked in three main areas.

Overview

- 2013–2017
 - 16,953 people made contact
 - 7,981 survivors
 - 1,344 written accounts
 - 2,562 matters referred to police
- Private sessions
 - Over 8,000 personal stories
- Public hearings
 - Carefully chosen case studies
 - 57 public hearings
- Policy and research
 - Roundtables, consultation papers, funded research
 - 59 research reports

First it held private sessions and listened to nearly 8,000 stories, spanning many decades. Those sessions helped Commissioners learn about how institutions had responded to survivors and to decide which case studies would be instructive.

Public hearings were the second main activity. Fifty seven case studies examined how particular institutions responded to reports of abuse.

The third plank was its policy and research program. Research into child sexual abuse, its causes and impacts involved experts, academics, governments, service providers and others. Fifty nine research reports were published.

What we've learned from survivors

- Each person's story is unique
- There are patterns
- Physical, emotional, psychological and spiritual abuse as well
- Difficult to tell others
 - on average it took 24 years to tell someone else
- Support
 - sometimes offered by parents, partners, friends
 - almost never from institutions
- Impacts
 - sometimes immediate, sometimes years later
 - mental and physical health
 - personal relationships
 - education, employment, financial security

Survivors' reports have taught us a great deal. Each person's story is unique but there are patterns we can learn from.

Many survivors experienced physical, emotional and psychological abuse as well as sexual abuse. In church institutions spiritual abuse also occurred.

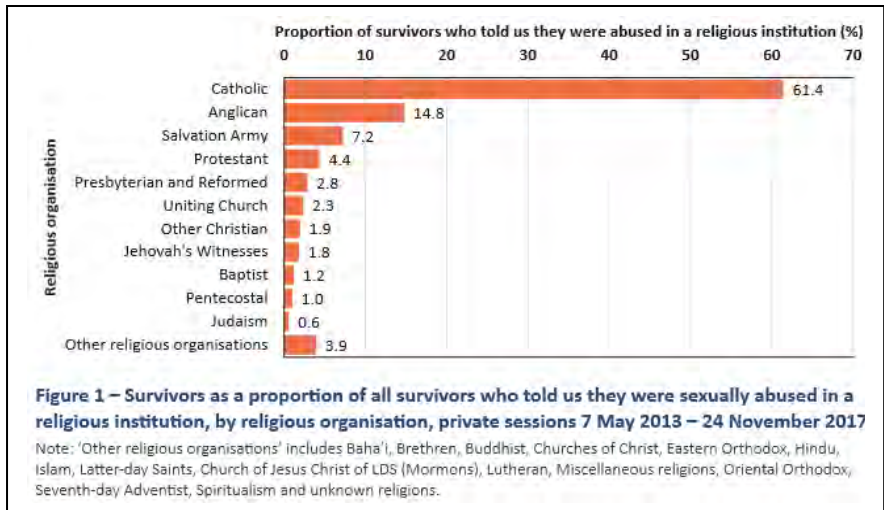

Survivors usually found it very difficult to tell parents, partners, families, friends and institutions about their abuse. Disclosure took place over time and at different stages in survivors' lives. On average it took survivors 24 years to tell someone.

Almost always representatives of institutions reacted negatively when they were told and didn't support survivors.

Some survivors experienced immediate impacts. For others it was triggered years later. Almost all survivors said they had poor mental health as a result of the abuse. Many reported impacts on their physical health. Abuse also affected education results, employment prospects and economic security.

The impacts have rippled out to affect victims' parents, siblings, partners, children and, in some cases, entire communities. Many survivors found it hard to maintain healthy personal relationships. Sometimes people are estranged from their own parents as a result of abuse; or from their own children. Marriages break down. Some grandparents never see their grandchildren. Some who were abused have taken their own lives.

Over 4,000 survivors told the Commission they were sexually abused as children in religious institutions. This table shows the proportion of survivors who reported abuse in religious institutions. 14.8% were abused in Anglican institutions.

Most were aged between 10 and 14 years when the abuse first started. The perpetrators were priests, religious brothers and sisters, ministers, church elders, teachers in religious schools, workers in residential settings, volunteers, youth group leaders and others.

More than 200 survivors had experienced child sexual abuse in a religious institution since 1990. So it is not all historical. Some is quite recent.

Thirty case studies focused on religious institutions. Seven of them concerned Anglican institutions.

Some aspects of abuse in churches and religious institutions are unique.

- Abuse in religious institutions
- Trust and respect used to gain access to children
 - Grooming of child and child's family
 - Manipulation of religious beliefs
 - Spiritual abuse
 - Unique impacts in religious institutions
 - spiritual confusion and loss of faith
 - children not believed because of status of perpetrator
 - alienation from families and religious communities
 - communities feel betrayed by perpetrators

People in religious ministry are often trusted. That trust allows perpetrators to gain access to children, to groom and abuse them. Seeing ministers as God's representatives, often parents couldn't believe they could be capable of sexually abusing a child. So ministers often had unfettered access to children. This trust also led adults not to listen to children who tried to disclose sexual abuse. It made religious leaders reluctant to take action and willing to believe perpetrators' denials.

Not believing that ministers could be capable of such abuse, also meant family members reacted negatively when told. That caused alienation between survivors and their families for years, in some cases for a lifetime.

Perpetrators often groomed the child's family, becoming closely involved in family life, regular visitors to the home, ingratiating themselves. Sometimes perpetrators targeted vulnerable families, stepping into the role of an absent father or manipulating those experiencing marriage breakdown or mourning a death.

Some children were threatened or blamed for the sexual abuse, in ways that manipulated their religious beliefs: told they'd go to hell if they resisted or told anyone about it. Threatening or blaming in the name of God powerfully affected children.

Some children were spiritually as well as sexually abused through religious rituals, symbols or language, producing spiritual confusion and loss of faith. Some children thought they'd been abused by God or that God must have wanted the abuse to happen.

Communities of faith also disbelieved disclosures of abuse and ostracised the reporters. A religious community itself can be shattered when child sexual abuse and inadequate responses come to light. When the abuse is revealed to be extensive or when leaders fail to take decisive action against perpetrators and to support survivors, or when they try to cover up abuse, church members can feel betrayed by leaders and institutions they had trusted.

How religious institutions failed

- Leaders
 - Knew of abuse and didn't act
 - Treated perpetrators leniently
 - Concealed abuse and protected perpetrators
 - Protected church's reputation over children's wellbeing
 - Disbelieved and blamed the victim
 - Minimised the misconduct
 - Failed to report criminal conduct to police
 - Allowed alleged perpetrators to continue in ministry
 - Failed to honour commitments to victims
 - Allowed known offenders to continue in ministry
 - Failed to discipline known perpetrators
 - Allowed offenders to disappear 'quietly'
 - Failed to care for survivors
 - Responded defensively, legalistically, without understanding or compassion
- Governance structures failed to hold leaders accountable

The failures of religious institutions are particularly troubling because they have played, and continue to play, an integral and unique role in many children's lives. They have been key providers of education, health and social welfare services to children. Among the most respected institutions in our society, their leaders were trusted the most and suspected the least by children and parents.

The case studies revealed that many religious leaders knew about allegations of child sexual abuse yet failed to take effective action.

Some ignored allegations and did not respond at all. Some treated alleged perpetrators leniently and failed to address the obvious risks they posed to children. Even when some perpetrators made admissions, some leaders inappropriately saw it as an 'aberration' or a 'one-off incident' and not as part of a pattern of behaviour. So perpetrators were forgiven and victims were encouraged to forgive those who abused them.

Some leaders concealed abuse and shielded perpetrators from accountability. Institutional reputations and individual perpetrators were prioritised over victims and their families. Senior Anglican Church personnel at times asked complainants to remain silent 'to protect the good name of the church'. Trying to prevent or repair public scandal, leaders concealed information that could tarnish the institution's image or diminish its standing in the community.

Leaders often dismissed, did not believe, or minimised allegations. Sometimes they attempted to blame or discredit the victim. Some children who disclosed abuse were punished or suffered further abuse. Some leaders told victims that there was nothing they could do, suggested that victims had misinterpreted abusive behaviour, or told victims that they should be 'forgiving' or 'let sleeping dogs lie'. Survivors spoke of being devastated by such responses.

In some cases, leaders knew that allegations may have involved criminal actions, but treated them as a forgivable sin or a moral failing rather than a crime. Other leaders wrongly concluded that there was no criminality involved. Some religious leaders claimed to have had a general lack of understanding about paedophilia and conduct amounting to child sexual abuse.

Before the early 2000s, Anglican Church personnel rarely reported complaints of child sexual abuse to police or other civil authorities. Alleged perpetrators were not reported to police despite them having made admissions of child sexual abuse to a bishop. In other cases, alleged perpetrators were not reported to police despite multiple allegations being made over years or decades. Where policies requiring reporting to police existed, they were sometimes not followed. One Anglican bishop acknowledged that had he gone to the police, much suffering would have been avoided.

Some who complained to the Anglican Church were actively discouraged from taking further action. Senior Anglican personnel threatened legal action against survivors and others who made complaints, dissuading them from reporting to police.

Church leaders allowed alleged perpetrators to continue to remain in ministry after suspicions or allegations were raised, with little or no risk management or monitoring of their interactions with children. Supervision was often either not arranged, not complied with or not effective, and further allegations followed. Some perpetrators allowed to continue in ministry or employment continued to abuse.

Even multiple complaints about the same individual at times did not lead to action. Some alleged perpetrators remained in the same positions with access to children for years, some for decades, after initial and successive allegations.

People who reported child sexual abuse were at times promised that action would be taken and none was.

Alleged perpetrators were given a 'second chance' with continued or successive appointments. This included moving alleged perpetrators to new positions in different locations where they were offered a 'fresh start', untarnished by their history of sexual offending or previous allegations. In some instances, these new appointments were geographically removed from the locations where the original complaints arose with movements across Australia and between different religious institutions. The communities that alleged perpetrators were moved into were often not made aware of the risks these individuals posed.

At times, clergy and lay people were promoted and progressed through the ranks of Anglican institutions even after allegations of child sexual abuse had been made against them.

Disciplinary systems were poor and leaders were reluctant to use them. So some perpetrators were not disciplined at all; some were, but in a minimal way; and others were disciplined, but only many years after allegations were raised or they were convicted. This often meant that perpetrators retained their religious titles, and lay perpetrators remained attached to religious institutions posing further danger.

Instead of reporting allegations to police or disciplining perpetrators they were sometimes encouraged to retire or resign as a way of dealing with these matters 'quietly' and to avoid scandal for the Church. Sometimes the real reasons why people were removed were concealed. This included allowing perpetrators to retire or resign on false grounds, such as for health reasons.

Where disciplinary proceedings occurred, the processes often caused additional trauma to survivors. Some survivors said that church complaint and redress processes were difficult, frightening or confusing, often overly legalistic, lacked transparency, involved generic apologies or no apologies at all, and failed to recognise the long-term and devastating impacts of child sexual abuse on survivors and their families. Religious institutions frequently failed to care for and support survivors during redress processes, civil litigation and criminal proceedings. This exacerbated the trauma they experienced.

The structure and governance of religious institutions may have inhibited effective responses. Independent, autonomous or decentralised governance structures often served to protect leaders from being scrutinised or held accountable.

In two of the case studies, alleged perpetrators remained in positions where they had access to children after a bishop had received a complaint of child sexual abuse about them, and further allegations followed. There was a lack of oversight and accountability of bishops, and no uniform process for complaints about bishops' handling of allegations.

How schools failed

- Failure to act on reports of abuse
- Protecting the school rather than children
- Not reporting to external authorities
- Record-keeping and sharing information
- Harmful culture
 - Physical and emotional abuse permitted
 - Encouraging male power
 - Homophobia
 - Blind obedience to authority
 - Lack of children's empowerment
 - 'Dobbing'
- Not holding leaders accountable

The Royal Commission identified numerous ways that schools failed. Certain features of schools magnify the risks and the impact of failures.

Failure to act on disclosures and complaints can lead to further abuse, place other children at risk of harm, and leave perpetrators not being held accountable for their criminal behaviour.

Poor leadership, governance and culture prioritised protecting the school over the safety of children.

School leaders and staff failed to report matters to external authorities, because of inadequate processes for complaint handling, investigation and disciplinary action.

Inadequate recordkeeping and sharing of information increased the risk to children. School culture can be a strong factor in creating risk of child sexual abuse. Some cultures can allow opportunities for abuse and make it difficult to detect. In such cultures physical and emotional abuse often accompanied sexual abuse.

Some boys' schools have cultures in which males are encouraged to exert power over others and behave in a sexually aggressive ways. Wrongly seen as healthy expressions of masculinity, such hyper-masculine cultures lead to harmful sexual behaviours. Homophobia is characteristic of such cultures and could be a barrier to boys disclosing sexual abuse by a male.

Some schools have strong cultures of unquestioning obedience to authority. This can create conditions conducive to child sexual abuse.

A lack of children's participation and empowerment can discourage children from complaining and feeling unable to speak up. Fear of not being believed was common because of the perceived authority and high-standing of the perpetrator. In some cases, disclosing sexual abuse led to further abuse.

Survivors feared the impact of disclosure on their family and community. Both as children and as adults, survivors choose not to disclose, or to delay disclosure, out of concern for their relationships with others. A culture of retribution against 'dobbers' exists in some schools.

School council members and leaders need to understand their obligations to keep children safe, and to be held accountable if they do not. Schools failed by having complex and opaque governance, leadership that didn't notify school boards of abuse, that didn't keep good records and didn't share information about perpetrators or complaints.

All these failings of churches, schools and other religious institutions are laid bare for all to see in the three substantial books that comprise Volume 16 of the Final Report, as well as in the detailed case studies, seven of which deal with Anglican organisations.

Looking to the Future

But the Commission was concerned not only to unveil the truth about the past and past failings. It was also fiercely resolved to make institutions safer for children in the future.

Looking to the future

- Shared responsibility
 - Governments, communities, institutions, individuals
- Recommendations focus on
 - Prevention
 - Investigating, prosecuting and sentencing offenders
 - Justice and support for survivors

It said that keeping children safe was a shared responsibility of governments, institutions, the broader community and individuals.

The Royal Commission made hundreds of recommendations, but they focus on three main areas:

- Preventing abuse or, at the very least identifying it as early as possible;
- Improving the way perpetrators are investigated, prosecuted and sentenced; and
- Improving survivors' access to justice and ongoing support.

Making institutions safer for children

- Community-wide understanding and prevention
- 10 Child-Safe standards
- Online safety
- Better responses and reporting
- Better record-keeping and information sharing
- Screening, training and supervising workers and volunteers
- Regulation and oversight by governments

The Royal Commission recommended:

- Improving knowledge about child sexual abuse in the community at large and steps that assist prevention;
- Ten Child-Safe Standards that all institutions should implement to make them safer and focused on children's best interests;
- Strengthening children's safety online and improving institutions' responses to online abuse;
- Improving institutions' responses to and reporting of abuse;
- Strengthening recordkeeping and information sharing; and
- Thorough screening, training and supervising workers and volunteers.

There are also recommendations about what governments should do to regulate and oversee institutions.

Recommendations for Anglican Church

- Consistent approach to child safety across the national church and its institutions (16.32 and 16.33)
- Uniform episcopal standards framework (16.1)
- Managing conflicts of interest (16.2)
- Consistent national approach to selection, screening and training people for ordination (16.4)
- Mandatory national standards for professional/pastoral supervision and regular performance appraisals (16.5)

The Commission made a number of recommendations specifically for the Anglican Church.

Survivors have been treated inconsistently because the Anglican Church has no consistent national approach to responding to child sexual abuse. The Commission recognised the barriers to such an approach, such as dispersed and decentralised authority, diocesan autonomy, and theological and cultural differences between dioceses. But the Commission insisted that a way be found to develop a consistent approach to child safety and monitor it in the 23 dioceses and their organisations (Recommendations 16.32 and 16.33).

A start was made last year when the General Synod passed the Safe Ministry with Children Canon setting in place national standards for this Church. This Synod adopted that Canon in 2017 just weeks after the General Synod and an implementation group has been working carefully since then to implement them.

The Royal Commission also said there needs to be a uniform episcopal standards framework to ensure that bishops and former bishops are accountable to an appropriate authority for their responses to complaints of child sexual abuse (Recommendation 16.1).

Again a start has been made with the General Synod extending the jurisdiction of the national Special Tribunal to include former bishops as well as current bishops, but more work needs to be done to have a uniform episcopal standards framework for the whole Church.

Sometimes bishops and senior diocesan officials had conflicts of interest in their responses to people accused of child sexual abuse. Bishops' close relationships with clergy sometimes clearly affected their responses to allegations. The Commission recommended the Anglican Church adopt a clear policy to manage those conflicts (Recommendation 16.2).

The Commission recommended that the Anglican Church develop a national approach to the selection, screening and training of candidates for ordination (Recommendation 16.4); and that we develop and implement mandatory national standards to ensure that all people in religious or pastoral ministry undertake regular professional development, undertake professional/pastoral supervision and undergo regular performance appraisals (Recommendation 16.5). The Commission recommended that all this be mandatory.

Clearly there are further big and complex tasks. Work has begun on them but it will take some time. These are major cultural changes. Things are going to be different and we are all responsible to see that those changes are made as quickly and effectively as possible.

Redress

- Three elements
 - Monetary payment (recognising seriousness of abuse)
 - Lifelong episodic counselling and psychological care
 - Direct personal response from institution
- Commonwealth has not accepted all RC recommendations
 - Reduced max monetary payment from $200k to $150k
 - Max $5,000 for counselling
- Anglican Church working to participate in national scheme
 - May also be an adjunct (national or diocesan) scheme for those not eligible for national scheme

Some years ago the Commission released its final report on Redress and Civil Litigation. It identified three elements of redress:

- a monetary payment to acknowledge the seriousness of the sexual abuse and the harm caused;
- counselling and psychological care to assist recovery; and
- a personal response from the institution, including an apology, if wanted by the survivor.

All these things we have been doing for many years, but the way in which we do them is changing because of the Commission's work.

The Commission identified two basic principles of utmost importance to survivors in relation to redress. First that there be consistency of treatment. Second that decisions about monetary payments be made independently of the institution in which the abuse occurred.

The federal government accepted the thrust of the Commission's recommendations (though not all the details) and has established a national redress scheme. That scheme commenced operation on 1 July this year and will run for 10 years in the first instance.

The Anglican Church nationally has established a company, through which Anglican dioceses, schools and other organisations can participate in the scheme. Diocesan Council has committed this diocese to join. Last month the Queensland Parliament passed the necessary legislation to allow institutions in Queensland to opt in. We are moving to do so as soon as possible.

We will still need to respond to some people outside the national scheme because not everyone is eligible to participate in it. We have put in place policies to ensure as far as possible that all survivors will be treated consistently.

You will have seen and heard media reports of some dioceses selling property to fund redress payments. Our finance people have advised Diocesan Council that we expect to meet our financial commitments to survivors in a timely and ordered way. Provisions for redress monetary payments have been and will continue to be made. Decisions about property assets unfold after thorough consultation and careful examination of what best serves the mission going forward. We don't anticipate needing to sell off property hurriedly to meet our redress commitments.

Clearly we still have considerable work to do to ensure children are protected. I also recognise that we have already come a long way and I pay tribute to all those who have contributed to the transformation of the church over nearly two decades. I acknowledge those who have served on our Professional Standards Committee and Board and their predecessors. I acknowledge our professional standards staff and those who manage abuse claims. The Anglican Schools Office has brought to bear enormous energy and expertise to ensure our schools are safe and up to speed. Anglicare provides counselling and support services to survivors of abuse and ensures its own services to children and families are at the highest standards. All these dedicated people do costly and difficult work on behalf of us all. I thank them for it. Those who have worked on groups developing policies and processes and reviewing them in the light of feedback from survivors and church members, also deserve our thanks as do members of the Diocesan Council who have been overseeing all this work for many years. Thank you all.

Pilgrimage of Justice, Peace & Healing

Nearly 20 years of dealing with the horror of child sexual abuse has had enormous impacts on the church and the wider community. The extent of abuse and response failures over many decades has shocked and appalled people both within and outside the church. That reality has also fundamentally shaken the wider community's trust in the church. It has accelerated the decline in church participation which was already under way and profoundly damaged our efforts in God's mission.

It has also damaged us spiritually. We've been slow to recognise and acknowledge the depth and long-lasting nature of the harm abuse has wreaked in the lives of survivors and their families. Facing the truth of what has happened and the reality of our failures has shaken us to the core. Many in our church have felt ashamed and betrayed and, yes, angry. Spiritually many have felt bereft, abandoned, numbed, immobilised, at a loss to understand how this could have happened? And so there have been defensive reactions, minimising, denial, avoidance.

It has been, and is, a very difficult and disturbing pilgrimage we have been on and are still travelling. But if the gospel is about justice, if the gospel is about healing, if the gospel is about reconciliation and restoring community, then this is a journey which is at the heart of the gospel, not a distraction from it.

The Lenten discussion groups this year helped many enter into this reality and move forward. In March this year we held a service in the Cathedral to reach out to the families and friends of those who had committed suicide because of sexual abuse. It was timed to follow the release of the Royal Commission's final report. On that occasion I again acknowledged the church's failures and the harm and suffering that had flowed from them.

A few weeks ago, during Child Protection Week, a further service was held in the Cathedral. 'Never Again' provided an opportunity for Anglicans to come together with survivors, their families and supporters during which church members expressed repentance for past failures and commitment to a new and radically different future.

We have come a long way on this journey we are on. And we have further to go. It is not a distraction from our core mission it is the essence of it. It is truly a pilgrimage of justice, peace and healing.

A Wider Context

Let me briefly say a word about the wider context in which we will continue this pilgrimage. The abuse scandals are not the only reason Anglicans are on the back foot.

In her 2015 book, A New Exile, Muriel Porter said that the Anglican Church of Australia is barely recognisable anymore as the Church that adopted its national constitution in 1960. Reflecting on the 2014 General Synod she painted a gloomy picture of six dioceses teetering on the edge of bankruptcy, three more in serious trouble, of steep decline in rural areas and of falling attendances across the board.

Porter also lamented the decline of the moderate and Anglo-catholic parts of the church, which have historically characterised Brisbane diocese and Queensland generally. In Porter's assessment, moderate and Anglo-catholic Anglicanism, in Australia and in other parts of the world, have capitulated to conservative evangelicalism which is now clearly in the ascendancy.

In some places Common Prayer, a central element in classical Anglican DNA, has been radically eroded. Until the 1960s virtually all Anglicans would have used the same words in worship, the same rites, drawn from the 1662 Book of Common Prayer. Mostly the same words were used in worship across the nation and differences were about which vestments were worn, about ceremonial and symbols such as candles and so on.

In 1978 the General Synod adopted An Australian Prayer Book, remarkably with only a single dissenting voice in the final vote. AAPB became standard fare across the whole church, with continued use of 1662 for some so long accustomed to it. Porter describes that as the high water mark of Anglican unity in Australia. But it was not to last.

By 1995 things had changed radically. The debates in the General Synod over the current prayer book, APBA, were strident and divisive. Though it passed the General Synod it was never uniformly authorised throughout the church even with its status reduced from 'Prayer Book' to 'Liturgical Resources'.

In 1996, the then Archbishop of Sydney, Harry Goodhew, had become so concerned about the erosion of Common Prayer and departures from what we might call classical Prayer Book Anglicanism that he told the 1996 Sydney Diocesan Synod:

The time has come when we must honestly face the question of the status of common prayer and liturgical worship in our diocese. We have always been a liturgical church ... For us, liturgy has meant a specific, authorised form that those set aside to minister in the church undertake to follow. As a result, Christ's people know what to expect when they gather for worship ... We are in danger of losing something which has been a principle feature of our life ... our rules provide our shape and our character...

Our [liturgical] forms have put into people's minds words with which to confess sin, to praise God, and to pray for issues which we are exhorted to bring before God. They have taught people the moral and spiritual precepts revealed by God, the value of both Old and New Testaments, the active place of the Psalms in Christian spirituality, as well as giving a concise and catholic expression of the faith, and a balanced and biblical approach to the sacraments. To abandon all this for the creations and passing predilections of an individual clergy person, or the inclinations of those whose main interest is music, may, in the long run, prove to be a poor trade off.

Yet Archbishop Goodhew's warning did not check the drift from classical Anglicanism which spread into other parts of Australia, not least because it's seen to be successful. Even some moderates and more catholic-minded Anglicans may have turned to it out of fear and anxiety about church decline, says Porter.

Preferring one style of worship over another is not the whole story, though. Peter Corney, a noted Melbourne evangelical leader, wrote a perceptive article in 2009, 'The future of the Anglican Church in Australia in the light of the decline of the Anglo-Catholic Movement.'

Corney is very positive about the beginnings of the Anglo-Catholic movement. In his assessment, its strengths arose because the founders:

- 'made a careful study of the early Fathers';
- Were 'concerned about personal holiness, committed discipleship and ... recovery of the spiritual disciplines';
- restored 'a sense of awe and beauty and holiness to worship [which] led them to recover a more elaborate and symbol-rich liturgy';
- 'wrote many beautiful hymns';
- 'had a very high view of Scripture and the creeds and were deeply orthodox and theologically conservative on creedal fundamentals';
- 'emphasised a more central and catholic notion of the role of the Bishop and the diocese'; and
- set forward a vision of Christian service and commitment that challenged a whole generation of young men and women to start new religious orders to serve others in evangelism, welfare and education.'

But by the 1960s the compelling, originating 'vision was running out of energy. Today it is almost exhausted.' Many of the organisations and movements have collapsed or been absorbed into secular institutions. Corney judges that:

- The movement 'lost touch with its theological ... core – the very things that had produced its energy and passion';

- 'It drifted away from ... creedal and biblical orthodoxy ... and gradually embraced a reductionist liberal theology'; so that
- eventually it became 'form without substance' where you have 'the appearance of Christianity ... but the essence ... lost'.
- The movement allowed 'a recovered incarnational theology to become unbalanced ... the importance of presence ... eventually overpowered the importance of proclamation ... confidence in preaching was eroded and the link between word and deed fatally weakened ... preaching, evangelism and proclamation were devalued and diminished.'
- 'Because Biblical teaching and preaching was [sic] diminished, this produced a poorly taught laity' and led to 'an incipient "Pelagianism" – salvation by good works. Being good and kind to others came to be seen as the essence of the Gospel.'
- It 'focused on a pastoral maintenance mode of ministry and so did not grow churches.'
- It became associated with high culture and rather snobbish, 'out of step with ordinary Australians'.
- It tended to look backwards to its 19th Century roots and failed to ground Anglicanism in Australian culture appearing as a kind of 'Vicar of Dibley' church 'eccentric, odd and quaint' but not needing to be taken seriously.
- It was divided and weakened over the ordination of women and 'The issues surrounding gender and sexual politics have been a major preoccupation' leaving 'little energy for other fundamental issues'.

The upshot of all this, in Corney's judgement, is that moderate and Anglo-Catholic Anglicanism has been left hollowed out, lacking energy, motivation and passion and without a compelling vision or message for the wider community.

Meanwhile ascendant conservative evangelicalism continues to grow in influence domestically and internationally. Porter sees that reflected in Australia in Sydney's vastly increased numbers in the General Synod, in unofficial church-planting strategies establishing 'non-Anglican' but Sydney-style churches in other dioceses, in exporting Sydney-trained clergy to alter the balance in other places and in other strategies. The Anglican Church of Australia is on its way to becoming a large Sydney diocese, says Porter.

Now, I think we should take care not to deride, still less to demonise, one or another emphasis within Anglicanism as if the various elements were in irreconcilable opposition: at war, as it were. Admittedly, over the years, as the church has faced various 'hot-button' issues it has sometimes felt like war: remarriage of divorced persons in church, the ordination of women as deacons, priests and bishops, lay people and deacons presiding at the eucharist as well as current differences over issues of human sexuality all readily spring to mind.

Can we take seriously the biblical affirmation that we are members of each other with differing gifts and functions intended to build up the whole body (Rom 12.3-7)? Conservative evangelical Anglicans enrich the whole body through the clarity and confidence with which they articulate the gospel; by their engagement with and knowledge of the scriptures; by their carefully planned approaches to pastoral care and following up of new people; and by their resolute teaching of the faith. The whole church in this diocese and beyond can learn from these strengths and be enriched by them.

At the same time, if Peter Corney's analysis is largely correct, as I think it is, this diocese and the wider church faces significant losses should the perspective of moderate and Anglo-Catholic Anglicanism further weaken.

Some of the potential losses were identified by Archbishop Harry Goodhew. The loss of the ministry of women as priests and bishops would be keenly felt by many, as would a reduced emphasis on the sacraments.

But perhaps the most profound loss would be what has traditionally been known as Anglicanism's comprehensiveness. Today it would probably be called inclusiveness. I mean 'the generous inclusivity that has been the hallmark of the best historic Anglicanism' (Porter, 2015, 68).

William Temple, is widely regarded as a quintessential Anglican. He became Archbishop of Canterbury in 1942 at the height of the Second World War. He summed up Anglicanism by saying:

Our special character and ... our peculiar contribution to the Universal Church, arises from the fact that ... we have been enabled to combine in our one fellowship the traditional Faith and Order of the Catholic Church with that immediacy of approach to God through Christ to which the Evangelical Churches bear witness, and freedom of intellectual inquiry, whereby correlation of the Christian revelation and advancing knowledge is constantly effected (Temple, nd, 113-14).

This generous Anglican comprehensiveness is one of our greatest treasures and one of our most prized gifts to the church universal. We should cherish and guard it.

But for this precious gift to be retained, the moderate and Anglo-Catholic expressions of Anglicanism need to be vital, imaginative, energetic contributors to the overall life of the church. This may well be a most significant responsibility that falls to a diocese like Brisbane in the current times and seasons and a critically important contribution we can make to the life of the national church.

I repeat, this is not to diminish either the evangelical or what is sometimes called liberal expressions of Anglicanism. They too have a vital and valuable role to play in this diocese as elsewhere. It is to recognise, however, that the diminished vitality of moderate and Anglo-catholic expressions actually threatens this church's historic, generous comprehensiveness. Brisbane, in my view, has an important contribution to make to ensure that loss does not eventuate.

What is most needed is for moderates and Anglo-Catholics once again to grasp and articulate a compelling vision and message. That means not so much borrowing methods and techniques from the apparently successful, though of course we can learn from others. Nor does it mean abandoning our heritage in panicked attempts to become superficially relevant. No, the heart of a compelling vision and message will come from theological renewal.

The roots of that renewal are in our fundamental convictions that God, in Christ, effected reconciliation between human beings and God. That reconciliation flows from the cross and resurrection and also from Christ's saving life. Christ makes available an eternal quality of life here and now, nothing less than a share in the divine life in the gift of the Holy Spirit, available to us through the scriptures and the sacraments in the life of the church.

This eternal quality of life is a first taste of what God will eventually complete in remaking all things and bringing heaven and earth together.

We are called to work with God in anticipation of that re-creation, to make real here and now the life of grace Christ reveals, and to invite all to the banquet.

In this work, the scriptures and sacraments attended to through sacred space, symbols, meditation, prayerfulness, stillness – are not old fashioned irrelevancies but the very means by which we encounter and worship the incarnate God with us (Porter, 2015, 42).

This diversity of ways in which we encounter God reflects the conviction that God cannot be contained or exhausted in texts, doctrines or dogma. As Martin Percy (2017, 21) has written:

Anglicans are broad because, simply, they think God is much broader than the measure of our minds. ... Anglicans ... often revert to broad and deep words like 'Communion', 'catholic' and 'comprehensive' because, deep in the ecclesial DNA of Anglicanism, is a breadth and inclusiveness that is fundamentally resistant to tribalism and sharp, high borders that only serve exclusivists.

Our task is to live in communion with God. When we do, God then brings together in the community of the church those who so live. People will come to faith in Christ 'when they discover inclusive churches committed to working for peace with justice; showing mercy, and engaging in the community with grace and integrity' (McIntyre, 2014 cited in Porter (2015, 43)) This is what makes the pilgrimage of justice, peace and healing in relation to sexual abuse central to mission. It's one expression of acting in the community with grace and integrity, showing mercy and working for justice and peace.

That's our share in God's mission. It's very different from a shallow 'supporting good causes approach' that Peter Corney criticises as hollowed out. Its foundation is following God in every aspect of life with a 'singular allegiance to Jesus' (ibid).

May this deep communion with God and a singular allegiance to Jesus mark our deliberations in this Synod. May we live out that comprehensive, inclusive character of classical Anglicanism with humility and integrity. And may the good news of God's love in Christ be evident in all we are and all we do in the life of the church and in the communities we serve. Then we will be true partners with God in God's mission to the world God loves, and partners in God's new creation begun in Christ.

28. Answer to Question.

Miss Petrina Gardiner asked:

- a) How much waste is generated through the catering for Synod, and of this, how much is recyclable?

a.g.

- b) Have any efforts been made, with the caterers or the school facility, to reduce the amount of waste produced, increase the proportion of waste that is recyclable, and provide ways to recycle waste that is recyclable?

Answer –

The Synod is using the facilities of Churchie and the event is subject to the waste and recycling procedures used at Churchie.

The Event Director for Churchie has advised that Churchie does recycle documents/paper/etc and has commercial recycle bins. However, 'green' recycling is not yet in place at Churchie. The caterer endeavours to have as little left-over foods as possible in catering for the numbers provided. Any foods left over are not able to be recycled or used for human consumption. However, historically there has virtually been no wastage from food lines particularly from Synod as catering numbers provided are usually accurate. The caterer has moved to recyclable sandwich wedges and other recyclable products where possible and will use such products if practicable.

Churchie has introduced recycling bins in the past, however, it is difficult to monitor students always doing the right thing and to-date all types of recycling initiatives have not been successful due to contamination. The School is currently in dialogue with contractors looking for a viable solution and, when resolved, bins for recycling of all products will be re-introduced across the campus.

Recycle bins for confidential documentation and paper products are in use in all buildings for staff and students.

The General Manager's Office did engage with Churchie on the issue of waste and recycling for the event but special arrangements outside existing systems proved to be impracticable for 2018.

29. Adjournment

The President adjourned the Synod at 3.30 pm.

The Very Rev'd Dr Peter Catt moved; the Rev'd Canon Garry Harch seconded:

34. Answers to questions

The Rev'd Ann Shepperson asked:

Is this Diocese currently receiving any financial compensation from perpetrators of sexual abuse of children in their care?

If not, is it possible to establish a process where those responsible for such criminal actions provide financial contribution to the Diocese as part of the penalty for their actions for any convictions?

Answer:

Monetary payments to people who have suffered child sexual abuse within the Church in this Diocese are funded from a combination of contributions from schools, Anglicare (in the case of Tufnell Home and Enoggera Boys Home), insurance and other Diocesan resources.

The Diocese considers the opportunity for contribution or recovery from alleged perpetrators of child sexual abuse on a case by case basis.

The principal opportunity for the Diocese to obtain contribution from an alleged perpetrator of child sexual abuse is to join the person as a contributor in civil proceedings. The Diocese was successful in such circumstances in obtaining contribution from an alleged perpetrator to the settlement of one claim of around 10% of the settlement sum.

The Redress and Claims team aims to deal with claims as expeditiously as possible and in a way informed by the risk of re-traumatising the claimant. In that context, the Redress and Claims team carefully considers and balances a number of matters when deciding whether to join an alleged perpetrator as a contributor in civil proceedings, including:

1. Whether the alleged perpetrator has been identified or is still alive;
2. Whether the allegations have been proved in another forum, e.g. by a criminal conviction;
3. The assets available to the alleged perpetrator to meet any judgement or contribution to a settlement;
4. The likelihood of being able to reach an early settlement of the claim if the alleged perpetrator is involved;
5. The impact on the person who was abused of having the alleged perpetrator involved in the proceedings, e.g. the alleged perpetrator having access to the claimant's discovered documents such as medical records and expert medical reports on the claimant, or being present during mandatory settlement conferences.

Our experience has been that in many cases, the alleged perpetrator:

1. is either not identified or is deceased; or
2. is not likely to have sufficient assets to make contribution or recovery steps worthwhile.

While it may be legally possible to commence a separate recovery action against an alleged perpetrator, there are difficulties including that all redress and settlement payments made by the Diocese are voluntary and are not a payment the Diocese has been legally obliged to pay. Also, such an action may require evidence from the person who was abused and therefore present an unreasonable risk of re-traumatisation.

Ms Leanne Cronk asked:

Would you provide an update of the current status and plans for the property at 2 Roseberry Terrace, Chelmer, the old Neilson Home site? The site has remained 'open' ground for close to 20 years.

Has there been any progress in the last 12 months concerning a preferred option for future use or development of this site?

Answer:

Anglicare and the Diocesan Property team have been looking into potential opportunities for the Roseberry Terrace, Chelmer site, and have carried out detailed investigations into the property, particularly from a town planning viewpoint.

The most recent advice from the Brisbane City Council is that there is potential for a resumption of around one third of the site for a future road/bridge. Together with flooding issues, this increases the constraints on the site in terms of future use and in particular substantially hampers its suitability for Aged Care.

Anglicare has no current intention to divest the land but is continuing to explore opportunities for the use of the land to support ongoing mission.
